PERSONAL ACCOUNTABILITY INSTRUMENT · NOT THE COMPANY SITE

Queensland Hydro — the public extract

Compiled 22 October 2026 from this site.

132 current, 45 with a profile picture on the extract. 117 past. 20 public-record rows. 115 contract lines. 24 articles. The Facebook analysis of 50 posts is in this file. The word-for-word posts, screenshots and comments remain in the separate 148-page Facebook PDF.

Built from job titles and what is already public. Hydro has not published an organisation chart. A senior is the highest title in the same area, or the chair above an executive. That is an inference, not a confirmed reporting line.

Company lines only. No personal email or phone is published for anyone on this extract. Borumba 1800 433 939 · borumba@qldhydro.com.au. Media 0438 204 378 · media@qldhydro.com.au. General info@qldhydro.com.au. Complaints community@qldhydro.com.au. 80 Ann Street, Brisbane.

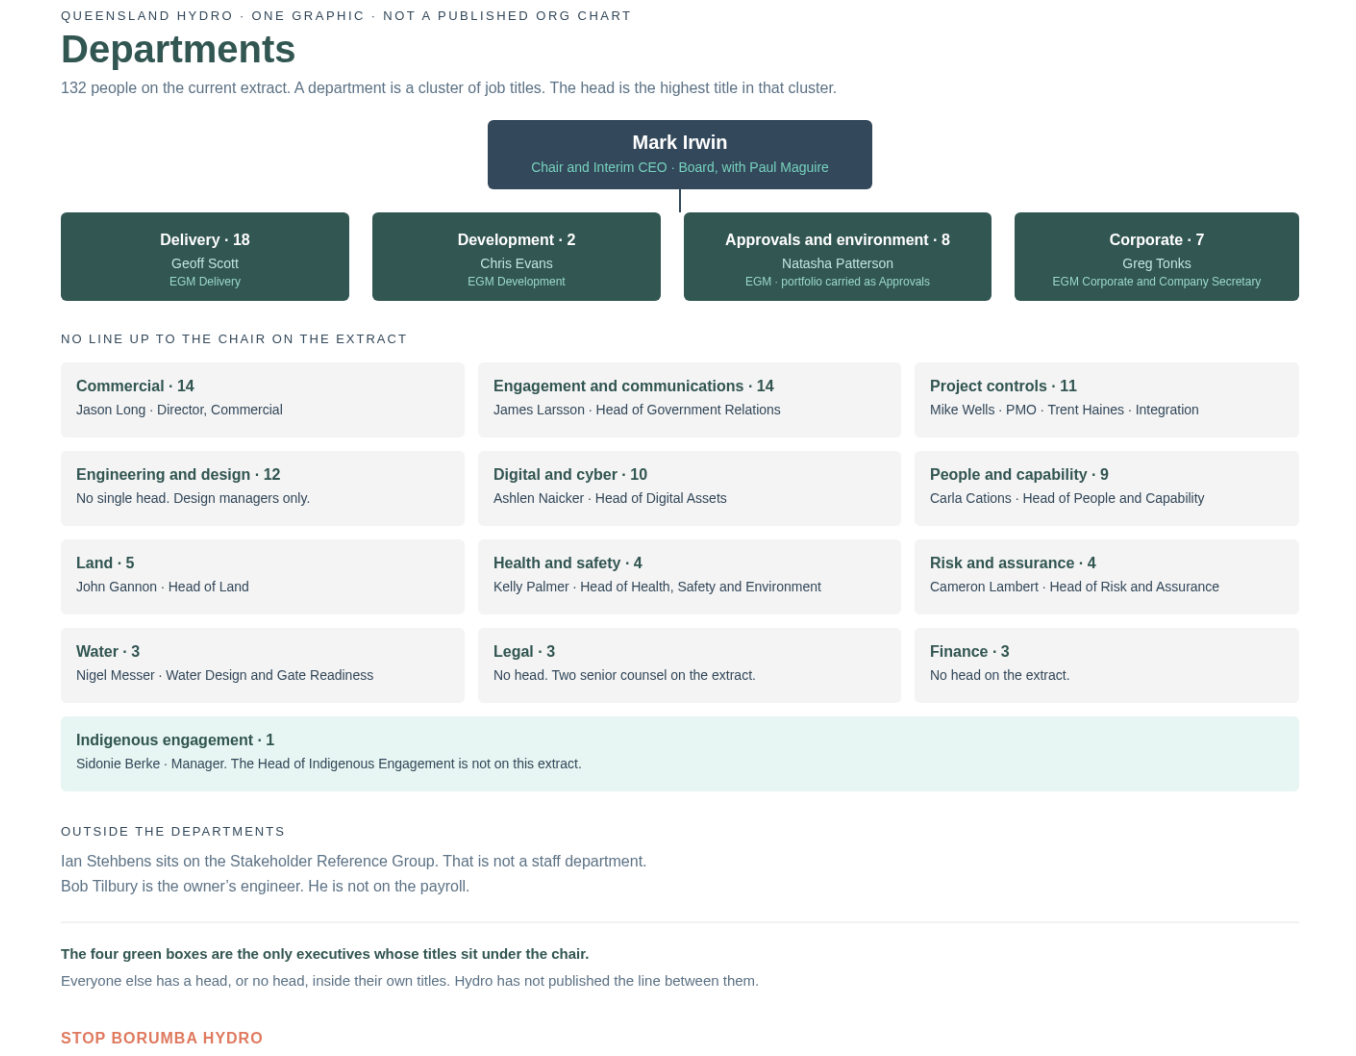

STOP BORUMBA HYDRO

Kabi people made this because Borumba pumped hydro is proposed for Yabba Creek, on Kabi ground. Every person named here can be held to account if they take part. Current staff. Past staff. Contractors. The Stakeholder Reference Group. Anyone else who participates, in any way. They will be held personally accountable by gilburri, and by the ancestors. He does not speak for any other family, mob or individual.

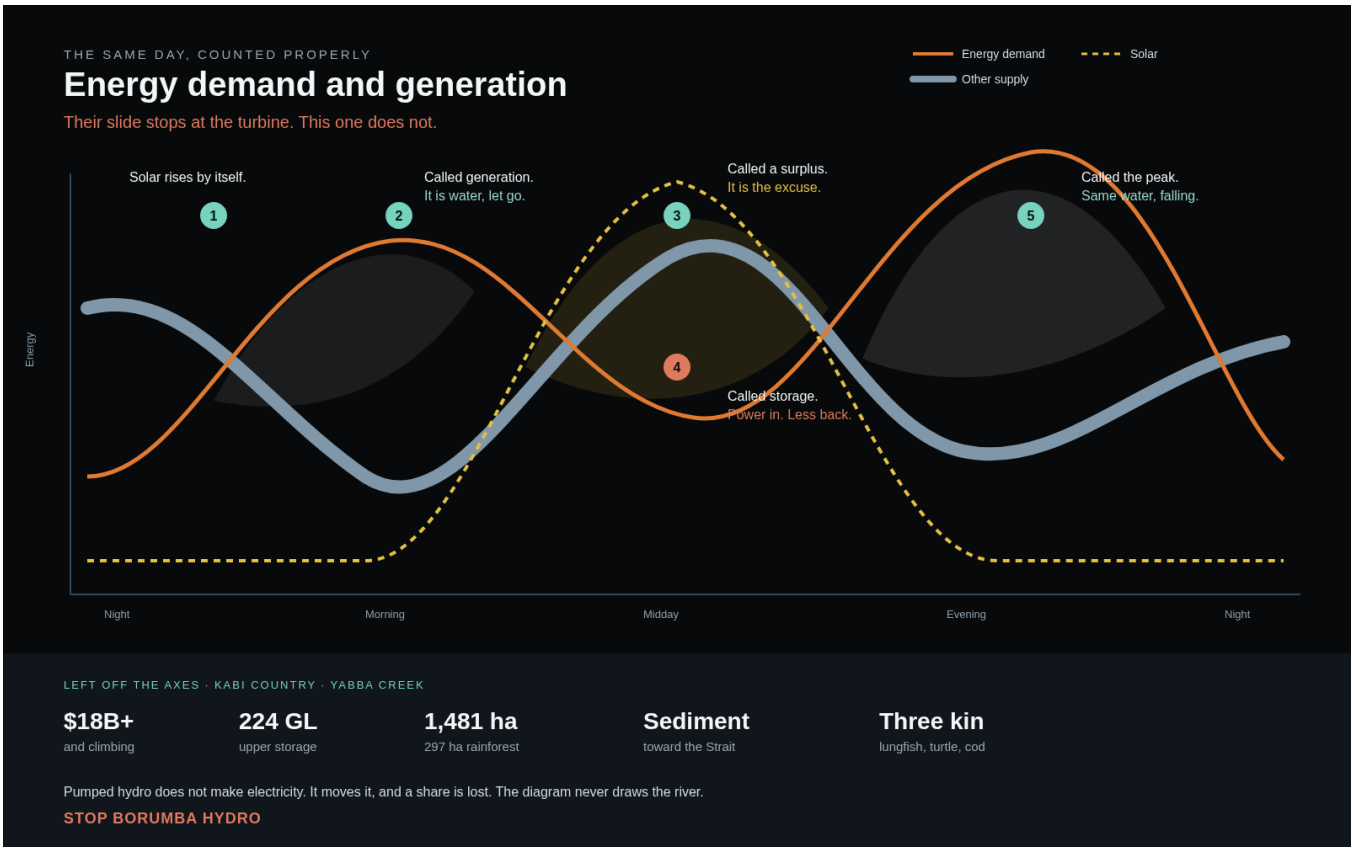

Organisation chart

Two graphics from the site, then the same people again with their pictures, grouped by the job-title cluster. Not a published org chart.

Departments

Energy demand and generation. Their slide stops at the turbine. This one does not.

FA

Fasih A.

Project Engineer
Engineering and design
Above on this extract: Peter Liebrich, Bradley Norwood, Peter Sagner, Shantanu Shah, Trent T.
Engineering and design. This title does the technical work on dams, tunnels, electrical plant or the ground. It does not hold the decision to build.
https://www.linkedin.com/in/fasih-ahmed-50016/

HA

Hasan Arif Ahmed

Senior Project Manager
Delivery
Above on this extract: Geoff Scott
Delivery. This title sits on the build: packages, underground works, construction, site supervision. The senior names are the highest titles in that same area on the extract.

SA

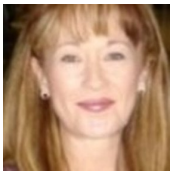

Sean Allen

Assurance Manager
Risk and assurance
Above on this extract: Cameron Lambert
Risk and assurance. The title checks whether the project's own systems say it is under control. It is an internal check, not a veto.
https://www.linkedin.com/in/sean-allen-80a307b/

BA

Bill Arrizabalaga

Project Environmental Advisor
Approvals and environment
Above on this extract: Natasha Patterson
Approvals and environment. This area writes the studies and walks the project through the state and Commonwealth gates. The work is how to get Borumba approved, not whether Yabba should be left alone.
https://www.linkedin.com/in/bill-arrizabalaga-556244104/

Angie Askew

Office and Facilities Manager
Corporate · Brisbane, Queensland
Above on this extract: Greg Tonks
Manager in Corporate. A manager runs a team or a workstream. The senior shown is the highest title in that same area on the extract, not a confirmed reporting line.
https://www.linkedin.com/in/angie-askew/

Emma Backhouse

Business Systems Analyst
Digital and cyber
Above on this extract: Ashlen Naicker
Digital and cyber. Systems, data and security for the company. Support work, not the decision to dam Yabba.
https://www.linkedin.com/in/emmabackhouse/

Alex Jeongwook Baek

Lead System & BI Analyst
Corporate · Greater Brisbane Area
Lead in Corporate. A lead runs a slice of the work, usually under a manager or a head. Hydro has not published the reporting line.

SB

Sidonie Berke
Manager, Indigenous engagement
Indigenous engagement
Indigenous engagement. A December 2025 advertisement for this title said the work is to keep a relationship with Traditional Owners and to help secure a project Indigenous Land Use Agreement and a cultural heritage management plan. It reports to a Head of Indigenous Engagement. That head is not on this extract. An investigative-works agreement is not consent for the dams.

Facebook analysis

What Queensland Hydro is really saying

A Kabi analysis of Queensland Hydro's social media. Fifty Facebook posts about the Borumba pumped hydro project, 24 February to 15 October 2026, from facebook.com/queenslandhydro. Prepared by gilburri fahy. October 2026.

My name is gilburri fahy. I am a Kabi man, and I stand with the Sovereign Kabi Defence of Yabba Creek. This report is about the waters of my people and about how a government-owned company talks to the public while it works on those waters.

Yabba Creek runs through Kabi country in the Mary Valley, near Imbil. Long before anyone called it Borumba, it was Yabba Creek, and the old records still say so. For Kabi people this creek is not a project site, a storage asset or a scenic backdrop. It is living water.

In 50 posts, Queensland Hydro never once uses the words Kabi, Kabi Kabi, Traditional Owners, First Nations or Aboriginal. Cultural heritage appears exactly once, as a single bullet point in a list of monthly works. Yabba Creek is mentioned mostly as the name of a road for trucks.

About 2,300 followers. Across the 45 posts where engagement was captured, the typical post received 17 reactions, 4 comments and 1 share. Reactions 1,376. Comments 326. Shares 104. All interactions 1,806. The top 5 posts account for 40 percent. Engagement was not captured for posts 13, 15, 17, 21 and 45.

Of 176 visible comments from members of the public, 43 were critical and 22 supported the project. Queensland Hydro replied in 33 of 144 comment threads: 69 percent of job enquiries, 80 percent of neutral questions, 33 percent of critical comments, and none of the author's 21 threads.

32 findings

From the 50 posts and the comments that loaded. Points marked Interpretation are readings of the data, not facts in it.

1. The project's real status is only ever explained in replies, never in a post.

The words "business case" appear 0 times in the 50 posts but in 10 of Queensland Hydro's 36 replies (posts 2, 23, 27 twice, 30, 31 three times, 33, 42). One reply says "Queensland Hydro is currently progressing a revised business case… and remains in the design and assessment phase" (post 2). Meanwhile at least 8 commenters say they have heard it is dead, axed or not funded, including "the project is dead after that" (post 2), "this project had been rightfully Axed" (27), "this project was being abandoned" (31), "It won't be going ahead" (31), "I keep hearing different things" (33) and "Still going ahead with the project?" (30). No post ever states its status to all 2.3K followers.

2. Cost is never mentioned. The only dollar figure in 50 posts is the $10,000 grant.

"Cost", "billion", "dollar" and "budget" appear 0 times. The only money in any post is "up to $10,000" for grants (posts 13, 15, 20, 50). Commenters raise money in 11 comments ("Stop wasting our tax dollars", "Giant money pit of doom for Yabba ck.", "More wasted money"). When Scott Reynolds asked "I herd it's costing $17 billion and a 25 plus years project. How can you call economical" (post 31), the reply gave no figure, only "our focus is on delivering a refreshed business case and commercial assessment".

3. The most-liked comment in the whole dataset is a critical question that was never answered.

Julie Lee's "Is this Queensland's version of the flawed Snowy 2.0?" (post 31) has 15 reactions, more than any other comment or any Queensland Hydro reply (the best reply has 8). Snowy is raised in 4 comments (posts 2, 27, 31, 48). Queensland Hydro answered none of them.

4. Critics get more audience support than Queensland Hydro does.

The 43 critical comments drew 88 reactions (2.05 each). Queensland Hydro's 36 replies drew 32 (0.89 each), and the 22 supportive comments drew 42 (1.91 each). Of the 9 non-Queensland Hydro comments with 6 or more reactions, 6 are critical (Julie Lee 15, Shane Walker 9, and Steve South, Ken Jenkins, Dianne Kewin and Grant Budd at 6 each). Based on the manual comment coding.

5. Queensland Hydro "liked" 8 comments. All were nostalgia, banter or thanks. None were critical.

The 8 comments marked "liked by author" are 4 waterskiing memories on post 3, a crane memory on post 6, two sponsorship thank-yous on post 12, and one camp answer on post 17. None of the 43 critical comments was liked.

6. Nobody who asked when it will start ever got a date.

The questions include "When will construction start" (post 5), "When do you think the main works will start?" (30), "When is the dam and other major construction pieces going to start" (27) and "When is the actual construction phase of the plant going to start" (42). The replies only describe "phases". Three timing questions got no reply at all. The only forward-looking number in any post is a workforce "peak at around 200 personnel at the start of 2027" (post 42).

7. Walk-in hours at the Imbil office were cut by two-thirds and labelled "updated times!".

Post 44 (22 April) announced "We're extending our Imbil Office opening hours!" to Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10am–1pm: 9 walk-in hours a week. Post 4 (12 October) made Monday and Tuesday "by appointment" and left Thursday 10am–1pm "as normal", so walk-in time fell to 3 hours a week. The extension got a celebratory headline. The cut got a neutral one. Post 4 got 5 reactions and 0 comments.

8. By their own dates, was the workforce camp finished before exploratory works were approved?

Post 42 says: "In October 2025, Queensland Hydro completed the temporary accommodation 'Granite Camp' in the proposed upper reservoir area." Replies on posts 30, 31 and 33 say approval under the Commonwealth EPBC Act to undertake exploratory works was received in December 2025. Post 38 says the camp was "purpose-built to support early works". Interpretation: the camp may have had its own separate approval. The data does not show a breach, but the two-month order of events is worth a public question. This is raised as an open question, not as proof of any breach.

9. The EIS is presented as only a "maybe", yet the EIS partner is already on site.

Replies in July say a comprehensive Environmental Impact Statement "would be required" should the project progress beyond the current stage (post 23), and that a separate EIS would be required "if the Project progresses to main works" (post 30). Post 2 (13 October) shows the approvals team on site with "our Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) Delivery Partner, EMM". Interpretation: they are preparing as if main works will go ahead while telling the public it is undecided.

10. Specific questions get pasted replies that do not answer them.

Tim Peek asked about "ongoing environmental damage to the Mary River from sediment" (post 27). The 189-word reply never mentions sediment or the Mary River. Grant Budd asked about endangered, critically endangered and protected species (post 23). The reply names no species and no protection measures. Ken Jenkins asked "Is that why you put your offices in Nambour?" (post 29) and was told most opportunities come through contractors. Scott Reynolds' cost question (finding 2) got a "business case" line.

11. On their own "we're listening" post, the biggest environmental question was ignored.

Post 23 promises "Listening to community feedback" and "Sharing information openly". It drew 28 comments, the second-highest count, of which 8 of the 22 visible are critical. Dianne Kewin's "So how are you explaining the hectares of pristine scrub that will be lost?" (5 reactions) got no answer. Queensland Hydro's only reply in that thread was a social-media-rules notice aimed at another commenter. Six of the 28 counted comments on this post do not load.

12. The same people come back asking for the same environmental documents.

Grant Budd raised environmental concerns on four posts, including "shouldn't any form of environmental impact assessment have be done before you started clearing the land?" (2), "Still waiting for environmental impact surveys to be released" (23), "where are your environmental impact surveys?" (30) and "The damage to the local environment is huge yet somehow is being swept under the carpet" (31). He got the same pasted statement three times (posts 2, 23, 30). Interpretation: the standard answer is not satisfying the people who receive it.

13. The missing comments cluster on the posts with the most criticism.

The four posts with the most critical comments (2, 23, 27 and 31, with 7–8 each) account for 46 of about 105 comments that are counted but do not load. Posts 10, 35, 47 and 50 showed comments when first captured, then showed "No comments" when the comments were scraped. Caveat: commenters deleting their own comments, spam filters or Facebook faults can also cause this. The data cannot show who removed them.

14. "Consultation" appears 0 times in 50 posts. "Community" appears 29 times.

"Community" is used 29 times across 20 posts. "Listen" and "feedback" each appear once, both in post 23. "Share your views" appears once (post 18), and that post got 3 reactions and 0 comments. The only time Queensland Hydro uses "consultation" is in pasted replies ("following a detailed consultation period", posts 30, 31, 33).

15. No post names a threatened species, a habitat or a river. The only fish named are stocked sport fish.

"Species", "habitat", "river" and "Mary River" each appear 0 times in the 50 posts. The only animals named anywhere are "bass, golden and silver perch, used to replenish recreational fishing stock" (post 40). Interpretation: wildlife only appears as a recreational resource, never as something at risk.

16. Land clearing is never named, even though the works clearly involve it.

"Clear" appears only in "clearer picture" (posts 1, 9). "Tree" and "vegetation" appear 0 times. The posts still describe "access tracks, temporary creek crossings and portal pad preparation" (27), "construction of new gravel tracks" (43) and "an exploratory tunnel" (31). When Grant Budd wrote "before you started clearing the land" (post 2), the reply did not dispute that clearing had happened. A commenter on post 48 asks "When are the primary clearing jobs starting".

17. Cultural heritage gets one bullet point in a 9-second reel, and nothing after.

The only mention of heritage in 50 posts is "Cultural heritage surveys" in a list of April works (post 46, a 9-second reel). No later post reports what was surveyed, found or protected. Post 49 (March), the matching works list, does not include it at all. In all 50 posts the words Kabi, Kabi Kabi, Traditional Owners, First Nations and Aboriginal never appear.

18. Local-jobs promises come with no numbers, and the jobs question goes unanswered.

Posts 25 and 29 say Queensland Hydro is "committed to providing opportunities to local suppliers" and "committed to maximising local jobs", but no post gives any figure for local jobs. "Curious how many jimna locals have jobs there?" (post 2) got no reply. To Ken Jenkins, Queensland Hydro said most opportunities come through contractors (post 29), and a commenter concluded "Qld hydro won't be the direct employer" (post 42). The page's best-performing post (39, 188 interactions) is an industry-briefing promo. Interpretation: the most interest the page attracts is in contracts.

19. Recreation was promised in six words on a nostalgia post. The boating fear on another post was ignored.

To "hopefully this project doesn't impact on recreational sport on the dam", Queensland Hydro replied "You'll be able to enjoy as per!" (post 3). Corey Dark's worry about "the large todal rise and fall of water" and that "boating will be prohibited which the community does not want at all" (post 8) got no reply. Interpretation: that is an unconditional assurance given before any EIS has been done.

20. Alternatives raised by the public are never discussed.

Commenters raise batteries ("Big Batteries cheaper?", post 17), nuclear (posts 23 and 27), raising the existing wall instead (posts 27 and 31) and off-river pumped hydro (post 36). No post or reply engages with any alternative. The reply to Ken Jenkins on post 31 just restates the "two key stages".

21. A change in who oversees the project was disclosed only in a buried reply. The follow-up was ignored.

Only in a reply on post 2: "In June 2025, the Queensland Government transferred oversight of Queensland Hydro to Queensland Investment Corporation (QIC)." No post mentions QIC. The follow-up, "Queensland Hydro who are you accountable to.....", got no answer.

22. Other commenters do Queensland Hydro's explaining, including the uncomfortable parts.

Tony Slattery told a commenter it is "a few years away yet - if it proceeds? There will need to be a big chunk of Federal funding required" (post 27). Shelley Strachan answered the "axed" rumour (27), and Glen Barbieq pointed a job-seeker to the website (42). Queensland Hydro never confirmed or corrected the "if it proceeds" or federal-funding points.

23. The replies are templated: "Hi [name]… Thanks!", with paragraphs pasted between posts.

28 of 36 replies open "Hi" and 23 end "Thanks!". The same "two key stages… In December 2025, we received approval under the… EPBC Act" block appears on posts 30, 31 and 33. "Investigation and planning phase…" is word for word on posts 5 and 6. The same long environmental statement appears 4 times (posts 2, 23, 27 and 30). 17 of 36 replies send the person to an external link, and 7 replies were edited after posting. Two "replies" contain no text at all (a GIF or tag on posts 33 and 34).

24. Engagement events are announced at short notice and get little response.

The Jimna mobile office was announced on 13 July for 14 July (post 30), and the Kilcoy mobile office on 17 August for 18 August (post 18). The Mary Valley Show stall got 4 days' notice (11) and Kilcoy on 16 June got 5 (35). The seven pop-up and mobile-office posts (8, 11, 18, 26, 30, 35, 47) have a median of 8 reactions, and post 18 got 3. Interpretation: these count as engagement while giving residents very little time to plan.

25. Outreach leans towards Kilcoy, which a local says is "no where near" the dam.

Kilcoy is named in 10 posts. There were 4 Kilcoy mobile offices (8, 18, 35, 47) against 1 in Jimna (30). Kilcoy also got the show sponsorship (26) and the Aston Park precinct (12). Corey Dark asked: "Why do you need to be in Kilcoy when the hydro dam is no where near it?" (post 8). Interpretation: goodwill spending looks aimed at a town that may be less affected.

26. Most posts send people off Facebook.

34 of 50 posts carry an external link, 32 of them to qldhydro.com.au, plus bit.ly short links on posts 19 and 31. Posts with links have a median of 19 interactions, against 20.5 without. Three posts exist only to push the newsletter or news page (7, 33, 41), and post 7 got 6 reactions and 0 comments. Interpretation: the page is used to push people elsewhere rather than to talk with them.

27. Content is recycled from month to month.

There are 5 monthly works reels (16, 28, 36, 46, 49). Posts 46 and 49 are almost word for word. The industry briefing was promoted twice in 6 days with the same bullets (39, 37). The sentence "Since launching, the program has supported more than 25 local groups…" is identical in posts 15 and 20. The borumba-works page is linked 9 times.

28. The page makes errors: wrong links, typos and broken sentences.

Post 35 promotes a Kilcoy mobile office on 16 June but links to "industry-briefing-online-tues-16-june-2026". Typos include "#Boruma" (14), "Keep an eye out oversize for loads" (24), "mobilisaton" and "For all the details across to our" (49), "more than 43,000+" (40), "surfaced-based" (48) and "past time" (3). The replies also have "exporatory" and "cleaer" (post 2) and "eligible to apply to apply" (post 20). Posts 12 and 22 are the only ones without #QldHydro. Interpretation: this is hard to square with a well-funded state project.

29. It is an office-hours page. No weekends. More posts do not mean more engagement.

All 49 dated posts went up on weekdays. 48 were posted between 07:00 and 17:19, and one at exactly 00:00 (post 8, so scheduled in advance). The longest gaps are 21 days (12 March–2 April) and 19 days twice. Only 3 posts went up between 24 February and 2 April. July was the busiest month with 11 posts, but August's 9 posts averaged just 1.2 comments, the lowest of any month with more than 2 posts.

30. The questions about where a historic photo came from were ignored.

On the 1985 waterskiing post (3), Blair Price asked where the photo came from, and commenters argued over who was pictured and who took it. The post credits no photographer, and Queensland Hydro did not answer. Post 6's 1962 photo also has no credit. Marked minor in the report.

31. The grants program has grown slowly despite constant promotion.

It went from "more than 20 local groups" (post 45, 13 April) to "more than 25" (posts 15 and 20, August): roughly 5 more groups in 4 months, while grants were promoted in 7 posts. The 6 grants and sponsorship posts with captured engagement averaged 18 reactions, and without post 40 (68 reactions) the average is 8. The report marks this one weak. "More than" hides the exact numbers.

32. A handful of accounts supply much of the visible praise.

32 supportive or praise comments come from 22 accounts. One account wrote 5 of them. Another appears on 6 posts with 8 comments and replies, including 3 GIFs. Critical comments come from 29 different accounts. This is a count only. It says nothing about who is behind any account, and no identity claim should be made from it.

Conclusion

Fifty posts, eight months, one clear pattern.

Queensland Hydro's Facebook page is not a place where the Borumba project is explained, debated or justified. It is a place where the project is made to feel normal, local and friendly. The posts that do best are about contracts, business opportunities and old photos of the dam. The silence is louder than the words. Not one of the 50 posts names the Kabi Kabi people.

Kabi people have looked after Yabba Creek for longer than any record can show. We are not a stakeholder group to be managed or a heritage survey to be ticked off. We are the people of this country, and we say no.
